Subject: 2006 Community Services Block Grant Information System (CSBG/IS) Survey

Attached is the completed 2006 California Community Services Block Grant Information System (CSBG/IS) Survey that was submitted to The National Association for State Community Services Programs (NASCS) and concurrently to the Office of Community Services (OCS) on March 30, 2007. The information contained in this survey is aggregated with information provided by each state. The aggregated information will be reported in the 2006 National CSBG/IS Statistical Report prepared by NASCS. That report is then forwarded to OCS and Congress to illustrate the impact and outcomes of CSBG funded programs throughout the United States. Therefore, CSD would like to thank all the CSBG Agencies for submitting the 2006 CSBG/IS Survey.

The sections listed below are included in the report. Included for reference, in parenthesis following Sections D, E, F, G and Part II is the CSBG reporting form used to capture and aggregate this information. In addition, this year we have included a listing of local agency data that was reported for Section E, F and G.

Part I

- Section A—State Allocations of FY 2006 CSBG Funds
- Section B—General Information on the California CSBG Network & Distribution of Funds
- Section C—General Information on State CSBG Administration
- Section D—Program and Management Accomplishments (CSD 090)
- Section E—CSBG Expenditures by Service Category (CSD 425.OF)
- Section F—Other Resources Administered and Generated by the CSBG Network (CSD 425.OR)
- Section G—Client Characteristics (CSD 295)

Part II

- Outcome of Efforts: National Performance Indicators (CSD 801)

Attachments

- Attachment A—List of Eligible Entities
- Attachment B—Other HHS Resources
- Attachment C—Other Federal Sources
- Attachment D—Other State Sources
- Attachment E—Additional National Performance Indicators

The CSBG/IS contains valuable information regarding the accomplishments of the CSBG Network in 2006. CSD encourages each agency to utilize the data in local reports to support the value of the CSBG Program.

For any questions regarding this report, please contact Amber Twitchell at (916) 341-4322.

Sincerely,

Section D

Program and Management Accomplishments

Part I: Section D: Accomplishments and Coordination of Funds

Please do NOT use acronyms.

State Reporting: California

Please see instructions for further details and examples of the types of narratives to be submitted here.

1. What do you consider to be the top three management or program accomplishments achieved by your state CSBG administering agency during your FY 2006 program year? Briefly describe them. These can pertain to the state agency itself, or to grantees.

a. CSBG Self-Assessment Tool

The Department of Community Services and Development (CSD) formed the CSBG Blue Ribbon Task Force in May of 2006 to assist in the development of a self-assessment tool designed to strengthen the CSBG Network by assessing the core effectiveness competencies required to run a CSBG funded organization. The tool incorporates elements from the National Community Partnership Standards of Excellence, NASCSP's White Paper on Monitoring and other various assessment tools. CSD worked in collaboration with the Blue Ribbon Task Force, a group of CSBG Network representatives from a variety of CSBG funded agencies. The Task Force met monthly throughout the year. The two entities worked to develop Core Elements of Effectiveness by which CSBG funded agencies can self-assess their agency operations. The Self-Assessment Tool considers the following categories:

Board Governance
Leadership
Financial Stability
Linkages
Program Delivery

The tool was field-tested at a variety of organizations and is supported by the CSBG Network. CSD will continue to work with the Blue Ribbon Task Force to encourage agencies to complete the self-assessment tool and to make continuous improvements to the tool in order to ensure the self-assessment tool is successful in promoting excellence among the CSBG Network in California.

In the coming years, the self-assessment tool will be used to identify effective and best-practices that exist within the CSBG Network. This information will be compiled into a report and dispersed throughout the Network. Additionally, the self-assessment tool will assist CSD in identifying common challenges among the CSBG Network which will be used to develop network-wide training to address these challenges. The self-assessment tool will also assist CSD in developing and offering training tailored to meet the specific needs of each agency.

b. University of California, Davis – Nonprofit Management Course

The Department of Community Services and Development (CSD) contracted with the University of California, Davis to provide an intensive Nonprofit Management/ Leadership course for CSD staff working within the Department. The course was designed to provide the staff with an expansive understanding of nonprofit organizations with an aim of improving their ability to effectively monitor the Department's contracts and provide technical assistance as necessary. The course consisted of 16 full day sessions and focused on a variety of topics including Governance and Management, Strategic Planning, Resource Development, Cost Accounting and Nonprofit Financial Management and Contract/Grant Management and Administration.

The sessions began in June and continued throughout the year. Each staff that participated received Continuing Education Units in addition to receiving a Certificate of Completion. Additionally, the course allowed the opportunity for the CSBG staff to become familiar with effective nonprofit management practices and increased their understanding and ability to assist the CSBG Network.

c. "Trading Places" – A unique training opportunity for CSBG Staff

Under the leadership of the Director, The Department of Community Services and Development (CSD) developed a training program for staff that was intended to offer CSBG staff members the opportunity to gain practical experience working in a community-based program. Each staff was paired with a Community Action Agency and was sent to work in this agency for one week. Many of the CSBG staff had never had the opportunity to work with community-based organizations that administer programs supported by CSBG funds in a role outside of their duties as a state representative. This exercise attempted to offer the staff an opportunity to learn the true impact of CSBG funds from a local agency perspective. The program was structured to allow local agency leaders the discretion to utilize the CSD staff in the capacity that most benefited their organization. The local agency leaders were given the flexibility to choose which programs and services the CSD staff person would engage in. This exercise was in no way intended to be any form of a monitoring visit. Instead, the agency was visited by a staff person not directly involved with that particular agency and the CSD staff was instructed to visit the agency with the intent of learning from local agency staff. All costs for this exercise were covered by CSD.

During their stay at the Community Action Agency, the CSD staff participated in a variety of activities. Staff had the opportunity to work directly with program participants in clothing closets and self-sufficiency programs. Staff also had the opportunity to participate in community forums and local collaborative policy meetings. Each staff was offered a unique experience tailored to best demonstrate the work of the specific Community Action Agency.

The CSD staff returned with praise and appreciation for the valuable work performed at the local level. The CSD staff felt as though this was a valuable experience and that it greatly enhanced their understanding of the work that they do with the CSBG Program. Upon their return, one staff stated, "My experience at a local agency was very valuable in better understanding my role at CSD. My experience has caused me to begin thinking critically about program development and better meeting the needs of the local agency. I was impressed at the widespread services offered through the organization and the compassion of the staff. This experience clarified for me our role at the state department and our obligation to work hard to improve the CSBG Program".

2. Please provide at least three narrative or anecdotal accounts of how agency programs, funded at least in part by CSBG (a) eliminated a cause of poverty, or (b) eliminated a condition of poverty so that one or more households were moved out of poverty status. Please indicate whether the activity was completely funded by the CSBG, or if not; why the CSBG was or was not important to the outcome.

- a. Community Action Partnership of Orange County
OC (Orange County) Works
CSBG funds were used to pilot a new program (OC Works) that included hiring an Employment Service Case Manager to assess client needs, assist clients to obtain public benefits and family support programs, help clients find employment or find better paying jobs, and help households develop a career and asset building plan that leads to short and long term self-sufficiency. OC Works' goal is to eliminate the lack of training or other barriers preventing individuals/families from earning a "livable wage," as determined by local standards.

Sonya needed assistance because she was unemployed and recently homeless after leaving an abusive relationship. A friend offered temporary shelter under the condition she find employment. OC Works assisted Sonya by analyzing her work history and enrolling her in job preparation classes. She was coached and prepared for a job search and potential employers identified. Two weeks later, Sonya was successfully employed with a small company working in their Accounting Department.

Thirty three individuals were enrolled in employment case management services in 2006 (the program began in May). Twenty of the 33 have successfully secured employment (61%), three (9%) are enrolled in occupational training and two (6%) are enrolled in work services to gain work experience. Clients placed into unsubsidized work earned an average of $12 an hour. And 90% learn a "livable wage" determined by local standards.

- b. Community Action Board of Santa Cruz County, Inc.
Women Ventures Project (WVP)
WVP offers training sessions and intensive case management to assist women enter non-traditional careers in order to achieve self-sufficiency through earning higher wages. CSBG funds administrative support including grant-writing assistance, fiscal and technical support, and overall supervision.

In 2006, a Latina single mother in her mid-twenties with one small child was accepted into the program, attending a five week training session. She learned the proper use of tools, participated in a community project using her newly earned skills, and worked with a case manager to identify non-traditional careers. Following the training, she successfully applied for a position with the County of Santa Cruz as a Maintenance Worker I with the Public Works Department. This job pays over $18 an hour, bringing her and her child out of poverty. She continues to do well and is well-liked by her supervisor and fellow employees. Other graduates have entered careers such as carpentry, electrical, sheet metal work, transportation and plumbing.

- c. Berkeley Community Action Agency
Building Opportunities for Self-Sufficiency (BOSS)
All CSBG funding is allocated to BOSS, a program that provides emergency services to the homeless. BOSS works to eliminate homelessness, a condition of poverty, by assisting clients to obtain life skills, income through employment, and moving them from life on the streets to permanent housing.

Patrice had been chronically homeless for 17 years, struggling with mental illness and substance dependence. Although she had recently become clean and sober, her general assistance did not support permanent housing. BOSS's Multi-Agency Service Center (MACS) assisted her apply for SSI benefits, arranged for therapy, and assisted her with acceptance into a housing program. On March 2, 2006, she moved into a one bedroom apartment. In May 2006 she was awarded SSI benefits and has retained her housing.

Anthony (homeless - SSI), James (homeless - substance abuse), Kathren (homeless for two years; substance abuse), and Donald (homeless for 8 months - depression) have all retained housing after receiving BOSS services and counseling. James, Kathryn, and Donald are working.

3. Please provide a description of three innovative programs funded at least in part by the CSBG that have demonstrated success in eliminating a cause or causes of poverty and/or a condition(s) of poverty.

- a. Community Action Partnership of San Bernardino County (CAPSCB)
Obershaw House Transitional Housing Program
This innovative program is a project operated by the Family Development Program of CAPSCB and consists of two apartment buildings, with four large one-bedroom apartments. CAPSCB leases seven of the units to homeless families for a period of one year at a minimum monthly rent. Throughout their residency at the apartments, families are able to address personal goals to help them achieve self-sufficiency as well as identify permanent housing. The Family Development Program uses the eighth apartment unit as an office to monitor families and serve as a resource center. One case manager, or Family Development Specialist, oversees the Obershaw House tenants. In addition to providing shelter for low-income families for up to twelve months, other poverty issues are addressed on site, including education, job training, employment opportunities, budgeting, and child care.

- b. Merced County Community Action Agency (MCCAA)
Local Disaster Lead (Voluntary Organization Active in Disaster (VOAD)
In February 2006, following a CSBG Advisory Committee meeting in which CSD encouraged an active role in disaster preparedness, MCCAA became a lead agency serving Merced's needs during local disasters. Unfortunately, the area suffered through three disasters last year affecting the health and safety of the low-income population. MCCAA was the first to contact victims of a Merced flood in the spring of 2006 and assisted with flood damage and its effects in a very low income neighborhood. In the summer an extreme heat wave led to more than 100 deaths in California, hitting the poor particularly hard. Merced's homeless day program was designated as a Cooling Center, an innovative program put into place very quickly, where low-income elderly, those with compromised health, the very young, the homeless, and the poor could stay during the days of 110 plus degree weather in Merced. Lives were lost by people who were isolated, did not have or could not use air conditioning, and had no family members to look out for them. The Cooling Center provided respite during this weather emergency. In addition, after dangerously cold weather, MCCAA extended the hours of its Cold Weather Shelter, providing housing services to the low-income and coordinating with county and regional OES managers and the Red Cross to coordinate all weather assistance efforts, which included having administrative staff on call 24 hours a day.

City of Oakland

Project Choice

Project Choice offers housing and services for incarcerated and transitioning males 18-30 years old. Thirty to fifty percent of parolees in California's urban areas are homeless, a major obstacle to employment, avoidance of criminal activity, and successful reentry. Educational disadvantages and lack of job skills are barriers to many parolees; 46% of inmates at San Quentin have not graduated from high school. Oakland police currently estimate over 3,000 parolees live in Oakland. The original program was launched four years ago with CSBG funding; that investment allowed Project Choice to leverage a 2006 grant award of $1.25 million in new program dollars to enhance and expand the program. Pre-release program intervention and transitional phase services include housing referrals, subsidies, case management, and employment development partnerships. Project Choice's newest effort is to open the doors of the Project Choice Housing Academy to offer 24 hour housing with onsite social/behavioral counseling, economic development training, and recreational activities.

Seventy one men aged 18-30 were enrolled in 2006; 10 obtained jobs; 51 were able to maintain stable housing with placement assistance; and 11 moved into a transitional housing facility. CSBG funds have been used for research, planning and staff salary for the Project Choice coordinator. In-kind services include The Charles P. Foster Foundation (Project Choice Housing Academy facility manager; the Mentoring Center (case management/counseling and housing assistance; Allen Temple Housing and Economic Development Corporation (employment services), and Centerforce (case management/counseling and housing assistance). Oakland CAP provided a $46,000 grant to Project Choice; total funding for the project in 2006 was $302,536.

4. Please describe one project or activity that linked resources from several sources to mobilize or coordinate a solution to a poverty problem in the community. The point is to show CSBG "at work" as it funds staff activities, investments or services that meet a previously unmet community need.

Program Name: Earned Income Tax Preparation (EITC) and Financial Education

Purpose:

To assist low-income people become self-sufficient by providing them the means to increase their tax returns and to build their assets.

Need for Program:

Internal Revenue Service estimates that $25 to 25 million EITC dollars are left unclaimed in San Diego County each year. The County of San Diego, Community Action Partnership has married EITC tax preparation services with financial education and asset building activities to maximize income, increase purchasing power, and build assets for CSBG individuals and families.

CSBG Service Category:

Income
Management

Role of your agency in program:

CSBG provided some of the resources such as the salary of the CAP manager and contract administrator to run the program.

Partners and Partner roles:

EITC partners included Home Start, Inc.; South Bay Community Services; Metropolitan Area Advisory Committee; North County Lifeline; Interfaith Community Services; Social Advocates for Youth; the American Association of Retired Persons; United Way; IRS; Hunger Coalition; County of San Diego Executive Team; and Cox Communications.

CSBG involvement (planning, coordinating, funding, guaranteeing loans):

CSBG funds were used for CAP manager and contract administrator; equipment such as computers, printers, flash drives, and training for volunteer retention. The CAP coordinated the countywide EITC Coalition, research, development and implementation of best practices, expansion, resource development (financial and in-kind), financial education development, and statewide participation in the EITC Advisory Network.

Type of funding (monetary, in-kind, services, etc.) contributed by each partner:

Partners provided free tax preparation, financial education workshops, food stamp outreach, enrollment in low-cost or no cost health insurance, volunteer management, data collection and reporting, and marketing and outreach.

Description of Program:

This program has made a significant improvement to the low-income participants of San Diego County. The program was so successful that the EITC coalition added 39 additional sites to make the program more accessible to the communities it served. During this program year, EITC has increased the asset of 855 individuals. Because of the success of the EITC and financial education, the county expects to raise the number of individuals next year.

Impact and Results:

In 2006, two thousand, three hundred and five CSBG tax returns were completed returning $5,841,750 in EITC and Child Care dollars to CSBG families and eventually to the community, and 855 individuals participated in the financial education component. Assistance sites were increased from 19 to 58.

5. Please provide a brief description of one youth and one senior focused initiative that describes how the CSBG funds that you will list in Table 2 of Section E were used and coordinated with other programs and resources.

Include the following elements for Youth and Senior:

- a) Amount contributed by other programs, and partners
- b) Role of other programs and partners
- c) Result and impact

Youth Initiative:	Economic Opportunity Commission of San Luis Obispo County  Teen Academic Parenting Program (TAPP)  TAPP targets teen clients who are pregnant or a parent already and provide healthcare for mother and baby, childcare, job training, financial assistance, and parenting skills. Many TAPP clients have been in the foster care system, homeless or lack family support. Partners Include middle, high, and community schools; public agencies such as Drug and Alcohol, Mental Health, Social Services, Child Welfare Services; and County Public Health ($324,768 in grants). Other funding is provided by Community Development Block Grant Public Services, Grants in Aid funding, and Federal Financial Participation. CSBG funds help to provide planning, resource development, and reporting assistance to ensure service continuity, and support for core services. TAPP clients have low subsequent pregnancy rates, low child abuse rates, strong high school graduation rates, and continuity of support. More than 300 teen mothers were served in 2006.
Adult Initiative:	Community Action of Ventura County, Inc. (If you don't use Ventura for the Innovative program)  Project Seniors Safety First  The goal of this program is to provide low-income seniors of 17 cities and unincorporated areas of Ventura with the skills to prepare a disaster preparedness plan and provide them with disaster kits to survive 72 hours after an emergency or a disaster. CSBG Discretionary funding of $44,525 was used for project staff, disaster kits, travel, printing and material. Regular CSBG funding funds part of the salaries of staff who provide financial and program supervision, monitoring and reporting. Other partner agencies are Ventura County Area Agency on Aging ($3,050); Ventura County Red Cross (bilingual resource person, use of facilities in 17 cities and unincorporated areas, staff for coordination and training.) Seniors not income-eligible are attending the training and are provided with information to develop their kits at their own expense. The Community Action Agency has received many requests for training from senior housing and senior day centers. Ninety one senior volunteers provided time, love, and skills for 242 youth and children with exceptional needs in 2006. Two hundred forty two at-risk youth and children were given opportunity for a relationship with non-judgmental senior adults.
